Department Overview

The Clark County School District provides a program of instruction for school-aged students who are unable to attend classes due to injury or illness. To qualify for homebound services a student must be, or anticipated to be, absent for fifteen consecutive school days or more. The fact that the student will be, or is anticipated to be, absent for an extended period must be substantiated by a licensed physician. To be eligible to receive homebound instruction the student must be enrolled in a public school within the Clark County School District and be under the care of a licensed physician (medical doctor, doctor of osteopathy, psychiatrist.) Homebound is not intended for students with brief absences of less than 15 consecutive school days. It is the expectation that students who are on homebound are not participating in either school or outside extra-curricular activities. Homebound is not meant to be the student's only provider of educational services for the long term.

Performance Measures

Communication: Homebound services communicate with families using a variety of methods, including, but not limited to telephone, email, myccsd.net postings, face-to-face meetings, and surveys.

Consistency: Homebound services provide consistency by ensuring that teachers have the proper licensure and access to curriculum and materials to meet the needs of all students.

Customer Service: Customer service will be evaluated by parents, students, and home school staff with the use of surveys. The information will be used by the department to improve services.
